

RANSOM MONEY THOUGHT MOTIVE FOR KIDNAPING

This Theory Is One on Which Police of Chicago Are Working

Chicago, May 24.—Out of the tangled mass of clues, theories and suppositions about the kidnaping and murder of thirteen-year-old Robert Franks, the police today returned to the belief that the desire to make his millionaire father pay a heavy ransom was back of the crime.

The manner of the boy's death, hitherto one of the most mysterious features of the case, was definitely ascertained by a postmortem which revealed that he had suffered an internal hemorrhage. It is believed that he was injured internally while struggling with his captors and that he was suffocated either by a hand placed over his mouth and holding his nostrils tightly together, or by a handkerchief stuffed down his throat.

Having determined to their own satisfaction that young Franks' kidnaping, or one of them at least, was a polished, cultured, soft speaking individual, Chief of Detectives Hughes was more than surprised when an occultist whose identity is being kept secret, told him he recently had fitted, glasses to a man answering that description and whose name peculiarly enough, was Johnson, the name that was signed to the letter demanding $10,000 from the elder Franks.

The tortoise shell glasses found near the body, was another thing that had puzzled the authorities. That they had not belonged to the boy was known, yet when they first saw the body the glasses were on the boy's face. This feature was cleared when the undertaker said that he had put them on him, believing them his and that they would aid in his identification.

On the other hand, the glasses were not large enough to have fitted the features of any man except an exceedingly thin faced one. They are more of a feminine style and the police are investigating the possibility that a woman may have been mixed up in the affair.

Bit by bit, as they trace the boy's steps from the time he left the school yard, where he had umpired a baseball game, the detectives are piecing together what they say probably is the correct story. It has developed that at the precise moment the boy left the school a man who had been sitting on the curb in front rose and waved his arm as if in signal. It was a few moments later according to a story told by a school mate, that the boy was seen to enter a large touring car apparently willingly. From that moment all trace of him was lost till his nude body was found under a culvert near the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

Detectives returning to the place where the body was discovered early today found a note reading as follows: "Dear Officers: Find me quick. Am in danger. Robert Franks."

Fearing that it might be the work of jokers or perhaps a "blind" the detectives planned to submit the note to Franks' parents for identification. Although they have insisted repeatedly that no suspicion is attached to instructors of the exclusive Harvard School which the boy attended, the police were holding two of them in custody at outlying stations today. One is Walter Wilson, mathematics instructor and the other Fred Alwood, a teacher of chemistry.

DRY RAIDER AND WIFE ARE SHOT BY PARTY OF GUNMEN

Belleville, Ill., May 24.—S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan dry raider of Williamson County and his wife, were reported at St. Elizabeth's hospital today to be out of danger from wounds received yesterday when they were shot by gunmen while driving in a motor car to St. Louis. A charge from a shot gun struck Mrs. Young in the face. Her husband was shot in the right leg, by a revolver bullet, breaking a bone.

According to the story told by Young, a sedan caught up with his car as he neared Oakville and four men opened fire with shotguns and revolvers. The Young car was hit in fifteen places.

Young has been conducting a series of talks on the Klan in Illinois and was followed from Marion, his last stopping place. In ducking to avoid the shots, he turned his car sharply and almost drove it over an embankment.

BRITISH ARE ON GUARD IN KHYBER PASS, INDIA

BRITISH GUARD KHYBER PASS, INDIA

Despite diplomatic denials by the British Foreign Office of reports from Moscow that Great Britain is strengthening her forces on the Afghanistan frontiers and might even support an anti-revolutionary invasion to restore the former Emir, these recent pictures of Khyber Pass, the Indian entrance into Afghanistan, seem to bear out the Russian version. The main British force, it is said, is that Bolshevik Russia will invade India. This armed camp in the pass proves that Britain is maintaining large forces there, while blockhouses have been constructed along the entire frontier. India's loyal Sepoys form a large part of the garrison.

NATIONAL EUGENICS URGED BY GENERAL CHURCH ASSEMBLY

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 24.—An overture asking that the Presbyterian general assembly in session here go on record as favoring passage by the congress of the bill for sterilization and national eugenics, now pending in the lower house, will be submitted, probably Monday, it became known today.

The overture will be offered by Judge Royal R. Graham, of Georgetown, Colorado, assistant jurist of the Juvenile Court of that city.

The bill which Judge Graham would have the assembly approve provides for the sterilization of all convicted of criminal assault and provides for medical examination of all men and women before they are married.

"I believe the time for some such action on the part of the assembly has arrived," said Judge Graham in discussing the proposed overtures. "We spend millions annually to insure better propagation of horses, cattle, dogs, flowers, and I believe the time has arrived when the Christian people of this country should take steps to make impossible marriages from which issue children who never can be fit for service of any kind."

ONLY ROYAL DELEGATE TO G. O. P. MEETING ENROUTE FROM HAWAII

San Francisco, Calif., May 24.—The only royal delegate to the Republican national convention, the Princess David Kawanakoa, of Hawaii, is today enroute to Cleveland prepared to cast her vote for President Coolidge.

The Princess David has shattered precedent in two ways; she is the first member of royalty who has ever had a voice in internal American political affairs and she refused to comment on her political victory in Hawaii.

"You see," said the princess, "my opponent was Princess Kalaniana'ole, my late husband's sister-in-law."

While the Republican delegation from Hawaii is uninstructed, the nomination of President Coolidge is favored by both delegates.

"Our main objective now that the nomination of President Coolidge is practically assured, will be the securing of the six delegate votes, Hawaii possessed at the convention in 1912, which are now denied us," said the princess. "We feel that the growing importance of Hawaii in population and industrial independence is more than sufficient reason for giving us the additional delegates."

Princess David is the widow of the late Prince whose name she bears and the daughter of James Campbell, one of the pioneer settlers of the islands.

Hawaiian women, she believes, are experiencing the same intellectual freedom their sisters in America are practicing today although bobbed hair among other things, is not as universal in the tropics, as in San Francisco or other American cities.

TO LAY ASIDE PROPOSED FARM RELIEF MEASURE

Washington, May 24.—Farm relief legislation—the McNary-Haughen bill—was scheduled to be laid aside in the house late today while a week is consumed in acting on other matters.

The tax reduction conference report is scheduled for adoption by the house Monday. The legislative appropriation bill and an urgent deficiency bill, providing money for making effective the soldier bonus, will be considered Tuesday and Thursday. The $150,000,000 bill for new naval construction will occupy the house Wednesday.

The farm relief bill is to be given consideration although it may require three or four days to complete it.

This is in deference to wishes of the congressmen with farmer constituents and a general belief that some legislation to help the wheat and other farmers is urgent and imperative.

The McNary-Haughen bill may not be the legislation adopted. A hasty Democratic poll of the house is reported to have developed 215 members opposed to the legislation with 150 in favor of it.

PROMISES EFFORTS TO IMPROVE LABORER'S LIFE CONDITIONS

Rome, May 24.—King Victor Emanuel, III, in a speech from the throne today, opening the first session of the new parliament promised efforts by the government to improve the condition of the workers. The possibility of setting up technical councils to cooperate with parliament was suggested.

Referring to armaments, and reparations the king said:

"Italy cannot remain disarmed among nations that are armed."

"Italy is ready to help reach an equitable solution of reparations. She is disposed to make sacrifices to guarantee the peace of Europe, provided her own vital interests are safeguarded."

The Italian national budget now has been balanced. If the economic improvement is maintained, a gradual reduction of taxation will be possible.

The chamber was crowded with notables in evening dress. The king was accompanied by the queen and both were cheered when they arrived and departed.

SEARCH FOR MURDERER OF YOUNG SCHOOL TEACHER PIVOTS ON ANONYMOUS LETTER

Amherst, Me., May 24.—Search for the murderer of Louise Gerish, pretty nineteen-year-old school teacher, today pivoted on an anonymous letter written to the girl a few days before her death. The letter taunted her about a "pajama party" which the writer implied he had watched through the open window of the teacher's room.

The letter was missing when the teacher's shot-torn body was found and police believe the identity of the writer would be an important step toward solution of the crime.

The shot gun believed by the police to have been the murder weapon was located at the home of Ronald McDonald, 15, one of the teacher's pupils.

He, his brother, and another student were questioned but later released. The McDonald home is but 200 yards from the pasture where the murderer buried the body.

The anonymous note received by the teacher follows:

"We watched your performance last night in your pajamas. It was kind of you to keep the windows open. What a wild dance. Your dance was perfectly magnificent. We certainly had our eyes on you. It did surprise us to see the quiet village school marm dance steps that would not look good in church. We will be around next week."

DISCOVERY OF ANOTHER DEATH RAY, BEING ANNOUNCED BY SCIENTISTS OF LONDON

London, May 24.—Revolutionary discoveries in radio and electric rays are under scrutiny today as a result of the most intensive series of scientific tests in centuries.

Dr. F. J. Wall, of Sheffield University, announces discovery of "another death ray" similar to that discovered by Grindell Matthews. According to the scientists, his discovery makes it possible to transmit electrical energy in any direction across space without the use of intermediate wires.

Dr. Wall has applied for patents and is linking up his discovery with the ministry of air.

France and Great Britain are engaged in a race to obtain patents and rights for the new "death ray" of Professor Matthews, who is a British subject. Professor Matthews was on the verge of signing an agreement with a French firm when it was recalled to England to consult with government officials.

(Note: Discovery of the "death ray" by Prof. Grindell Matthews was announced by International News Service some months ago. At

FIVE CHILDREN AMONG VICTIMS OF BAD BLAZE

Ponkapoag, Mass., May 24.—Seven persons were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their homes here early today. Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laclaire perished.

Laclaire had gathered his family in a room on the second story with the intention of lowering them separately to the ground. He was endeavoring to do this with his wife when she threw her arms about his neck and dragged him through the window with her. He was unable to return for the children.

Mrs. Vincent Daltamasio, who, with her husband and three children occupied another section of the dwelling, perished in the flames with her three year old daughter, Volinda.

The other victims were Romolo Daltamasio, 12, Beatrice Laclaire, 10, Rita Laclaire, 9, ad five year old twins, Leo and Leona.

Firemen were handicapped by lack of apparatus.

Patrolman Joseph Cunningham discovered the blaze. Smoke was pouring from the building. The officer quickly made his way into the smoke filled structure.

At the top of the stairs, Cunningham came upon a still form and carried it back into the air. It was Vincent Daltamasio, head of one of the families. Leaving his burden on the ground, the officer again groped his way up stairs, this time finding the body of five year old Albert Daltamasio. He carried the boy to the street and for the third time attempted to re-enter the burning building.

This time, however, flames were sweeping the stairway and the officer was forced back to the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laclaire who had been sleeping with their children on the second floor, gathered the children together and herded them at Laclaire grasped his wife and raised her over the window sill, intending to drop her to the ground below. In a last minute attack of fright, she clutched her husband about the neck and the pair tumbled to the ground. Neither was seriously injured.

The bodies of the Laclaire children were later found huddled beneath a window horribly burned.

Mrs. Daltamasio on the other side of the house, carrying one of the babies in her arms, had just reached the door of her bedroom when she was overcome by smoke and fell.

Her body and the body of her child were found later.

FUNDS REALIZED BY SCHOOLS FROM SOURCES ANNOUNCED

C. A. Waltz, of schools, Saturday made public reports of funds from various sources which are independent of the regular school funds. Any explanation desired will be given on request by Professor Waltz. It will be noticed that the report of last year's "Know Your Schools" program is given as well as this year's program.

Superintendent Waltz's report follows:

The Opportunity School Fund heretofore given is the part remaining from the special drive made two or three years ago and turned over by the former business manager to the superintendent. The lunches were provided at the high school cafeteria and were really full meals, which were served to an average of 25 children per day at a charge of 10 cents each the bare cost of the food served. The serving of lunch to these children has resulted in a wonderful improvement in the children's health and their school progress. Gains of from ten to fifteen pounds in weight have not been uncommon.

It will be noted that there is a balance on hand in each account. The balance will be used to further the work in various lines of school activities. For example, the balance in the Opportunity School fund will be used for the same work next year, but, of course, will have to be very extensively augmented in order to continue this work as heretofore. The Federated P. T. A. has pledged itself to supply the necessary funds for this work.

The balance in the Lyceum Course fund will be used for the same work next year and to help make a better and larger course for the public's education and enjoyment.

"The balance in the 'Know Your Schools' fund will be used to supply each school building at the beginning of next year with first aid supplies, library books, supplementary readers, and other articles greatly needed, but not available from regular school funds."

The reports submitted by Mr. Waltz, show that 1440 tickets were sold at 25 cents each for the "Know Your Schools" Program of 1923, realizing a total of $360. Of this amount, $337 was paid out for expenses connected with staging the program, leaving a balance of $23 that was carried over.

This year, 772 tickets were sold for one night and 769 tickets were sold for the second night of the program, resulting in receipts of $355.25 from ticket sale. In addition from advertising and the sale of costumes, an additional sum was realized that made total receipts run up to $520.25. Of this sum, $294.32 was spent to defray expenses, leaving a balance of $225.93 still in the fund.

The Lyceum Course inaugurated during the present school year, resulted in receipts amounting to $1,247.22, the reports show. Expenses for the course amounted to $1,092.75, leaving $154.47 balance in this fund. Receipts in the Opportunity School fund represented $572.19 turned over to the superintendent by former Business Manager Beach.

January 1, of this sum, $1508.61 was spent, for luncheons for children in the Opportunity School, leaving a balance on hand of $63.58 in that fund.

HOME FOR BLIND RUN BY FORMER XENIANS HOLDS ANNUAL FETE

Cloverbrook Home for the Blind, Mt. Healthy, Ohio, founded and operated by the Misses Georgia and Florence Tracer, natives of Xenia and nieces of W. F. Tracer, North King Street, held its annual anniversary fete Saturday.

The celebration, at which the Misses Tracer expected to entertain many visitors, was also expected to serve as a medium through which much of the funds needed to operate the institution for the coming year, would be raised. Needs of the home are numerous and cards sent out announcing the annual fete.

The home was opened in 1890, a number of years ago, largely through the efforts of the Misses Tracer and Phoebe Carey, the poetess, made by the father of William Cooper Proctor, Cincinnati soap manufacturer. The plot includes thirty-six acres. The Carey home, unchanged from its original state, and still containing much of the original furniture is the center of the group of home buildings.

In addition to it, however, there is a new dormitory building and another building, used as a shop, in which the blind women are taught to do weaving and also do the Braille printing for the blind. A Braille printed magazine, distributed to the blind by the Lions Club, is printed at the institution. Of the earnings of the shop the women inmates are given a certain per cent and the rest is used for the operation of the institution. The home is now seeking a fund of $30,000 with which to erect another building.

Miss Georgia Tracer, who is blind herself, has also established a library for the blind in Cincinnati, in which Braille printed volumes are kept. Lectures and entertainments are held there periodically for blind people and since its establishment, traction officials have granted free passes to people attending these affairs. Miss Georgia Tracer also teaches Braille reading at the library.

The home now has twenty inmates, which is all it can at present accommodate. The Misses Tracer are daughters of the late J. F. Tracer, of this city, brother of W. F. Tracer.

WIFE WANTS DIVORCE

Edith Cleveland charges extreme cruelty in her petition for divorce from Walter Cleveland, whom she married in August, 1914. There are two children, Melvin and John. The plaintiff asks divorce, custody of the children and alimony.

HOME ON SLOW TIME

Because of a confusion that would result from a change of time, officials say, the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home has not officially adopted daylight saving time. The institution can operate more effectively on standard time, and also on the time followed by the railroads because of the frequent necessity of making and meeting trains, it is said.

Steubenville, O., May 24—Mangled almost beyond recognition caught in the gears at the LaBelle Iron Works, Alex Kriz died here today.

ESTABLISHMENT OF COMFORT STATION BEING ADVOCATED

Establishment of a public comfort station for Xenia, is being advocated by Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, according to Dr. H. C. Messenger, post commander.

Letters urging action in this respect have been sent to County Commissioners and to the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, following unanimous vote of the Post recently, favoring action on that matter.

The letter says in part: "We believe that it is realized by all, that a Public Comfort Station in Xenia is much needed, not only for the people of this city but for the people of the county and for tourists. Especially is the need for such a place manifested on Sundays and in the evenings."

"The Post Commander was instructed by a unanimous vote of the Post, to respectfully call your attention to this public need and to strongly recommend that such a place either in the City Building or in some other suitable location, be provided and equipped for this purpose."

"Feeling that this is a subject worthy of serious consideration as it would greatly benefit and be in keeping with the progressive spirit of this community, we desire to assure you, that the American Legion will co-operate with you to the fullest extent, in any manner that you may see fit to command them."

EXPECT FILING OF SUITS SEEKING TO HAVE TAXES CUT

Columbus, O., May 24—With the first suit of a public utility seeking to have its 1923 tax assessment cut, on file in Federal Court here, similar suits by public utilities from other counties were anticipated today.

The Mt. Vernon Telephone Company late Friday filed in U. S. District Court here a suit against the Knox County treasurer, charging a systematic under valuation of other county property while it is charged, the telephone firm was assessed at full valuation.

In the suit, the telephone company seeks to avoid payment of the balance of its assessment. It was stated that of the assessed $4,996.40, the firm has paid $2,498.20.

Suits of a similar nature were filed against a number of county treasurers relative to the 1921 and 1922 taxes.

The cat whisker of a crystal set should not be too long. If it is too long external vibration or jarring will cause the whisker to change position on the surface of the crystal. A very light contact should be made between the cat whisker and the surface of the crystal.

If you have a burned out tube or can get one, use it as a guide when wiring up your new set. This will prevent your plugging any wires too close or over a tube socket so that it will be impossible to insert the tube in the socket later on. When you wire around the socket, place the tube in the socket. You cannot hurt it if the screwdriver slips and you have a guide to keep the wires properly spaced.

EXPLAINS POSITION ON RADIO PATENTS AND BROADCASTING

H. B. Thayer, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, has issued a statement explaining the situation that has resulted in suits being instituted by that company recently to protect its patents affecting radio telephone broadcasting.

His statement declares that before the war the Bell System research laboratories began development of what is now called the vacuum tube as long distance wire telephone amplifier or repeater, which made possible transcontinental telephony. The laboratories of the General Electric Company had also undertaken the development of this apparatus for a different purpose, the statement says.

Each company acquired inventions and improvements of mutual usefulness. When the war came on, each set aside considerations of patent ownership and speeded up cooperative development of the apparatus its application to transmission by wire and wireless, for that the government could obtain the advantage of the completed equipment.

When the war ended a valuable art had been developed which no one in the business of communications could use without infringing upon the rights of others. Under such conditions there could be no further manufacturing of certain apparatus nor further development of this art, and the navy department requested the two companies to attempt to relieve the situation for the general welfare.

As a result negotiations were initiated to an arrangement of cross licenses to which other owners of patents were afterwards admitted, the parties to the agreement being given the specific uses of the apparatus in question that were logical to their business.

The Bell Company, the statement explains, had for its prime purpose in operating under those licenses, the development of the radio art as it would be useful in relation to telephone services and actuated by this, the company established an experimental broadcasting station in New York in order to be better able to study not only radio transmission problems, but also public tests in broadcast entertainment and to furnish advice to its associated companies.

As the result of the increasing popularity of radio, there was an increased demand for the installation of broadcasting stations, usually by companies seeking to advance themselves through the publicity, but without realization of the fact that a multitude of stations would create a congestion that might destroy the value of broadcasting.

Mr. Thayer explains that from a financial standpoint it would have been better to meet this demand by turning out the equipment but that his company chose to point out all the risks of the situation and to offer its own station for broadcasting purposes in order to keep down the number of separate stations.

Many broadcasters, the statement says, were using patents owned by the Bell System without knowledge of the infringement, so the company established a reasonable license fee, the payment of which with an agreement to refrain from further infringement would liquidate claims for infringement and give the broadcasters a legal right to the use of the patents.

With approximately 400 stations in the United States using these inventions without licenses, it became necessary for the company to institute legal proceedings to establish ownership of patents and protect its rights. Suit was first brought against a New York Company to minimize the costs to both, and another suit was brought against another defendant in relation to methods of sending programs of entertainment along wires, which the company believes might interfere with the operation of neighboring telephone service.

Future of broadcasting as outlined by Thayer as follows: "The general guiding principles are not like to change. They are: That we keep in and abreast of the development of the art and that we encourage in every way possible such development by others.

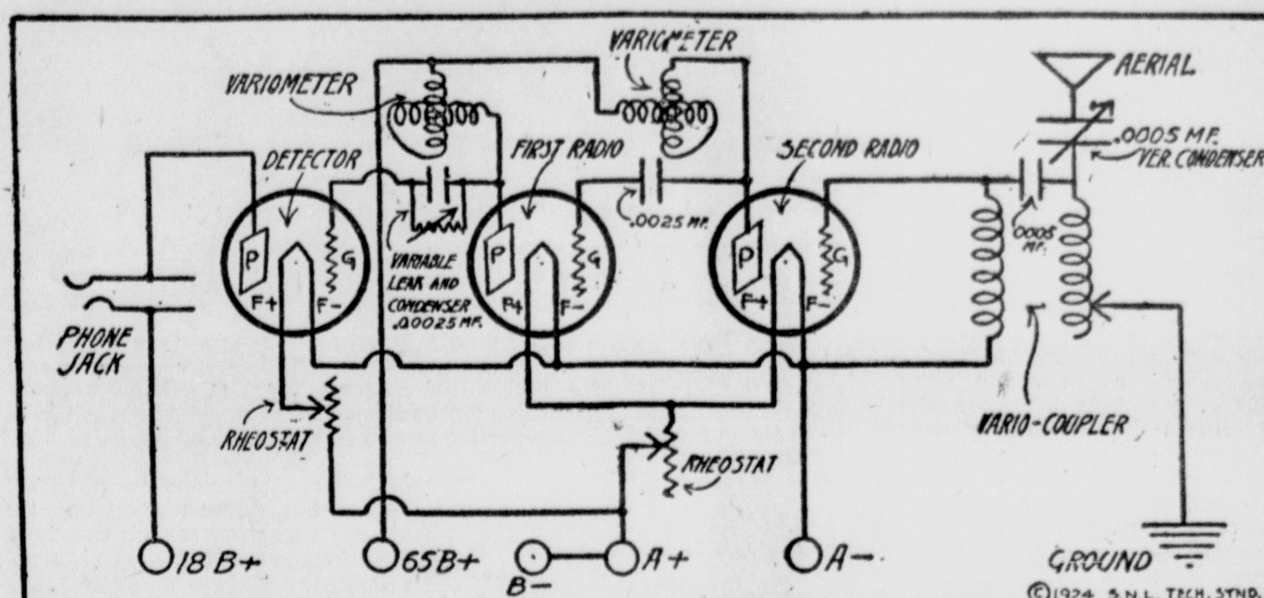

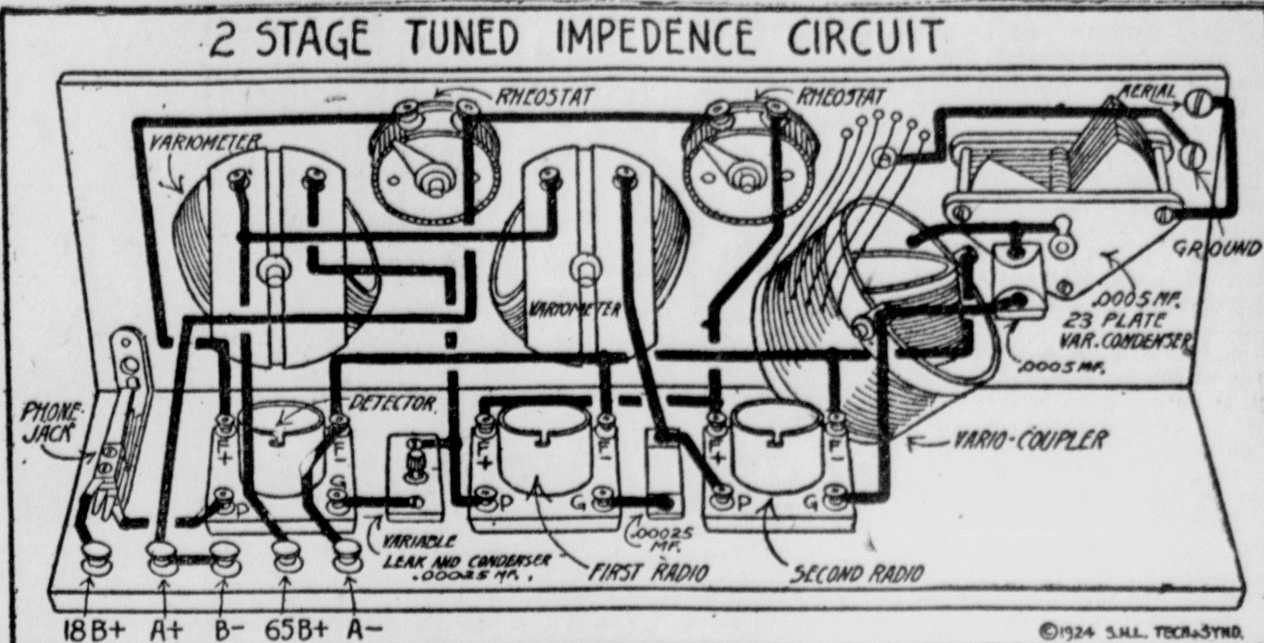

"We shall make it possible so far as lies with us, for anyone to secure broadcasting apparatus at moderate prices and for those broadcasters to continue their use under reasonable and moderate terms. For the present we shall continue to operate our own experimental broadcasting station, making its facilities available under reasonable rules, in the public interest, for those who wish to test broadcasting as a medium for attracting the public's notice. Far from desiring the sole responsibility for broadcasting, it is our strong belief that, in the public's interest and in our own interest, nothing should be allowed to interfere with any development of it that may be proved to be beneficial. We heartily favor government control of such activities and the federal legislation that is pending has our cordial support."

Timely Tips and Suggestions on the Latest Diagrams and Hookups—Simplified

TWO STAGE TUNED IMPEDANCE CIRCUIT

Standard Variocoupler and Two Variometer Circuit Can Be Changed to Two Stage Radio Frequency Set is increased approximately four times.

The actual gain in volume with the use of radio frequency will not compare with that obtained with radio frequency but you should find the strength of distant signals increased by quite an amount. Radio frequency requires careful workmanship to keep all leads short and direct as possible as to avoid a feedback of energy between the grid and plate leads of the tubes. This is important for best results.

TUBES MAY BLOCK
Radio frequency circuits do not always function at their best when first connected up. They may require a little adjusting until finally brought up to the point of highest efficiency. The feedback of energy between the elements of the tubes or the wiring in the set may cause the tubes to block.

The word block is used to express what happens when the tubes break into self oscillation and temporarily prevent signals from going through.

Signals are undistorted and free from the hollowiness of sound that characterizes the operation of a regenerative receiver near the oscillation point of the detector tube. The squeals and howls that are so numerous with the regenerative type of receiver will be greatly lessened.

STANDARD PARTS USED
A great many of the three circuit receivers are of the variocoupler, two variometer type. To add radio frequency to this type of tuner will unduly complicate controls and use more apparatus than is really necessary. The circuit presented in this article makes use of a variocoupler and two variometers in a two stage radio frequency and detector unit. With a two stage audio amplifier the circuit becomes a five tube receiver.

The coupling method used is often called "tuned impedance" in contrast with resistance or transformer coupling. In many cases the design of radio frequency transformers is such that they will not provide efficient amplification over the wave length range of 220 to 600 meters. This is due to the fact that there may be marked peaks and depressions in the amplification range of the transformer with the result that little, if any, increase of signal is obtained in such depressions. Receiving with transformer radio frequency coupling is usually unsatisfactory due to this reason.

With the tuned impedance method it is possible to tune each stage wave so that a maximum of transfer of energy takes place. The obvious disadvantage is the addition of several controls.

WHAT CIRCUIT WILL DO
A decided advantage of radio frequency amplification results from the fact that the effect produced on the detector by incoming signals is, in general, proportional to their square, that is, if the strength of the signal is doubled, the resultant effect on the detector

SNOODLES—Birds Of A Feather

Interest to Motorists

IGNITION SYSTEM OF BUICK POINTED OUT AS A FEATURE

For starting, lighting and ignition the Buick four is equipped with a Delco single built unit system. This is built as an integral part of the motor and is operated by a large storage battery. The ignition is the high tension, jump spark system. There is an automatic spark advance and manual control by a lever on top of the steering wheel. There is a combination switch with ammeter and automatic circuit breaker on the instrument board.

In this connection it is interesting to note the wiring in the Buick Four. All wiring is encased in flexible steel cables and is carried through heavy rubber grommets. This perfect insulation is one of the reasons why the Buick four is rated as a Class "A" insurance risk.

The timing gears are another feature that should be inspected in connection with the motor. They are unusually wide and are of the bevel gear type so that there is a minimum possibility of their getting out of order.

After the sturdy construction of the motor has been noted, the clutch of the Buick four should be examined.

It will be found that it is the multiple disc, dry plate clutch, and that although only the lightest pedal pressure is required for operation, it engages smoothly and positively. In addition it will be noted that it is easily accessible for adjustment.

The transmission, examined next, will reveal still further the correct mechanical design of the Buick four. A selective sliding gear type is used, with three speeds forward and one reverse. It is specially heat-treated. The hand control is integral with the gearset and is positive and interlocking. The transmission is built complete in the Buick shops and it is extremely quiet and efficient.

The transmission is connected to the propeller shaft by a single, large automatically lubricated universal joint. This is enclosed in a large ball joint, which takes both the torque and the drive, and adjusts itself instantly when unevenness of the road surface or other causes make this.

A set of Rex Enclosures, installed on a Buick roadster with its standard "summer top," transforms the open model into a snug and cozy closed car.

When a set of Enclosures is installed the "cape top" or "summer top" is not removed from the car. The Enclosure panels are simply fitted in to fill the opening between the windshield and the rear quarter curtains of top. The work of installation requires but a short time.

The door panels become a part of the body doors and open with them. All panels are fitted with glass of good quality. The glass in each door is divided into two sections. One of these sections slides backward and forward to permit of easy signaling and proper ventilation.

The door panels are attached to the car doors by means of an ingeniously constructed tension rod which holds the door panels, when closed, firmly and snugly against a deck rail that runs from the rear bow socket to the windshield standard. The space between the deck rail and the overhanging top is taken up with a neatly designed "filler" that insures full protection against any kind of weather.

RETAIL MERCHANTS TO DISCUSS TRAFFIC CONGESTION PROBLEM

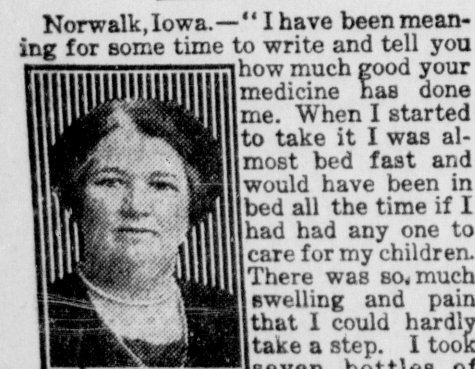

Motorists are advised that the village of Sabina has adopted a stringent traffic ordinance to curb speeding within the corporate limits.

The ordinance restricts the speed in the business district to fifteen miles an hour and twenty miles in the residential district. No one under sixteen years of age is permitted to operate an automobile in that village and in making turns speed shall not exceed eight miles an hour.

Sounding of horns is forbidden, except briefly for signal purposes. The ordinance provides fines of from $10 to $200 and a jail sentence.

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Iowa.—"I have been meaning for some time to tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine." Mrs. C. J. WENNER-SARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Women can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve them from female troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

She charges Hill made love to her and promised to marry her prior to his second marriage to Mrs. Pauline Gillison, of New York.

AUTOMOBILE COMPANY TO FURNISH EXPERT ADVICE ON TIRES

Following a week's schooling by factory experts, The Carroll-Binder Company, 108 East Main Street, is ready to furnish expert advice, not only on the qualities of the Firestone tires, for which the company is sole Greene County distributor, but one of the advantages of the Firestone balloon tire, recognized as a leader in that group.

The Firestone Company claims to have originated the famous Firestone balloon tire and to have developed that type of tire to its present popular state. The Firestone is now the only gum dipped balloon tire on the market, it is said, and it is also the only tire that has a rubber cushion between the fabric lining the heavy rubber tread and the inside fabric.

The Firestone Company is discouraging use of the semi-balloon tire, which it claims has been found unsatisfactory. The company makes the regular models and balloons, but does not now, and claims it never will manufacture a semi-balloon tire. Use of them is being discouraged by Firestone experts who have made a study of balloon tires.

The Carroll-Binder Company is able to make an unusually attractive offer in regard to balloon tires. The distributors will change balloon tires for the regular makes if patrons want to make a change and the agency will also handle all the bother of fitting the balloon tires to the wheels.

On automobiles not made for balloon tires, it is necessary that the wheels be changed for a smaller wheel, but instead of The Carroll-Binder Company selling the tires and permitting the owner to go to the trouble of getting smaller tires, this company offers this service free, selling the wheels along with the tires saving time and trouble.

As all Firestone products sold in Greene County are now handled through this Xenia agency, the local concern is in a position to make attractive offers to dealers and to car owners. The company also has the agency in Greene County for the Prest-O-Lite batteries and for Paige, Jewett and Grey automobiles.

TRAFFIC LAWS ARE TO BE ENFORCED

Columbus, Ohio, May 24.—Traffic congestion which is developing into a serious problem in the small as well as the larger cities of the state will be one of the main topics discussed at the state conference of Retail Secretaries to be held in Columbus, May 27, under the auspices of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants.

"Until very recently traffic congestion in the retail districts presented a problem only to the stores in the larger cities, but the number of automobiles has increased so rapidly that even the smaller towns are finding it difficult to provide adequate parking space," George Sheridan, director of the Council, said in issuing the call. "Merchants, who are primarily concerned, have experimented with many different plans in recent months, and at this conference we hope to exchange information on traffic and parking regulations which have proved most effective in the cities of various size."

WIDOW OF WILSON INJURED IN FALL

Washington, May 24.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson fell and fractured a small bone in one of her shoulders when on her recent visit to friends in the county—Virginia.

Mrs. Wilson regarded the mishap to be of little importance at the time, but as it became more painful she consented to having an X-ray photograph made, which disclosed the fracture. It probably will be necessary to use a plaster cast, and as soon as swelling subsides Mrs. Wilson will go to a hospital for a day, have the cast applied and then return to her home here.

Aside from a painful swelling, the wife of the former President is suffering no inconvenience.

NEW DURANT MODEL IS NOW ON MARKET FULLY EQUIPPED

Dickman and Johnston, Durant and Star Car dealers are now showing the new Durant car fully equipped with balloon tires and four wheel brakes. They claim it is the best and cheapest car on the market equipped as it is.

Balloon tires are the greatest contribution to the car owner's comfort since the introduction of pneumatics. They increase riding comfort many times. Durant has perfected four wheel brakes on his products to overcome all objections to front wheel braking. Durant engineers have analyzed all the requirements from the view point of their experience and reduced design and construction to combine the utmost simplicity and practical efficiency. In addition there is a standard emergency brake operating from the hand brake lever through internal expanding bands to the brake drums. Disc wheels furnished with this model have demountable rims with lugs attached and an extra rim is furnished, enabling tire changes to be made with the utmost convenience. The balloon tires furnished with this model are 30x5.25 giving the fullest endurance quality.

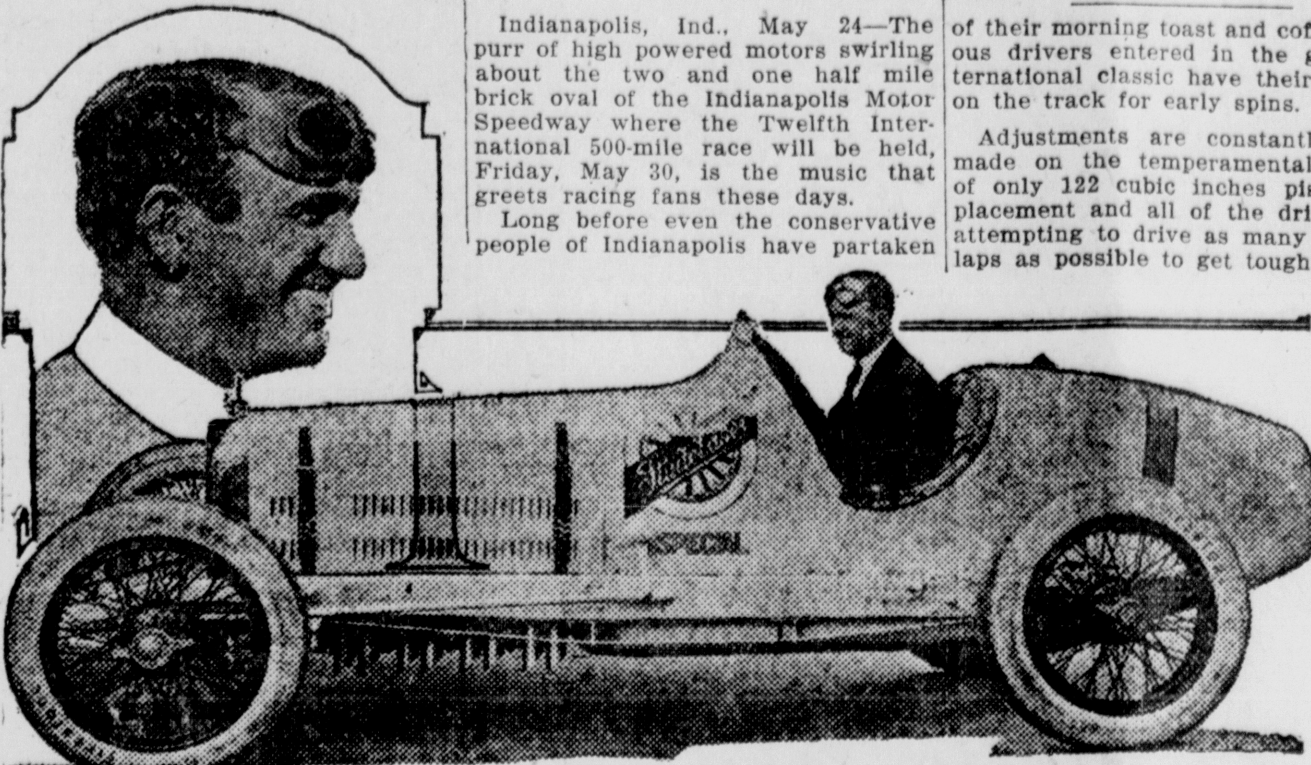

Standard features of this Durant Model also include a choice of attractive body colors with harmonious stripings, nickel plated radiator and headlights. Mr. Dickman in commenting on the new Durant says it has led all others in presenting the most advanced features of design finish and equipment.

SIDNEY FRATERNITY CHAPTER WITHDRAWS

Old Master Paints Earl Cooper's Car

Several days before Earl Cooper and Reeves Dutton, his mechanic, started for the Indianapolis Speedway with the Studebaker Special, they were tuning it up after a race on the west coast.

A snow-haired man, N. M. Henderson, by name, seemed fascinated with the car. Finally he told Cooper that he had worked for the Studebaker Brothers in South Bend, 67 years ago, painting Studebaker vehicles.

Cooper immediately gave him the job of repainting his car. The aged man mixed his own paints and worked night and day. The finished job is a masterpiece. It is Robin Egg Blue, vivid, unique and eye-arresting.

INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR RACES NEXT FRIDAY WILL BE SPEED CLASSIC OF INTERNATIONAL FAME

Indianapolis, Ind., May 24—The purr of high powered motors swirling about the two and one half mile brick oval of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway where the Twelfth International 500-mile race will be held, Friday, May 30, is the music that greets racing fans these days.

Long before even the conservative people of Indianapolis have partaken of their morning toast and coffee, famous drivers entered in the great international classic have their mounts on the track for early spins.

Adjustments are constantly being made on the temperamental motors of only 122 cubic inches piston displacement and all of the drivers are attempting to drive as many practice laps as possible to get toughened for the battering 500 mile over bricks that show no mercy to tender muscles.

Thousands of pre race fans crowd the track each afternoon and there appears to be more intense interest in this year's race than ever before in the history of the event. Undoubtedly this consuming interest is a result of the higher speed of the racing cars and the fact that practically all of the cars in the hands of the more famous pilots are very nearly equal in speed, making the burden of victory a very personal matter with the drivers.

Jules Ellingbee, of Crookston, Minn.,

a spectacular dirt track driver who has appeared here in two previous races, has been definitely announced as the driver of one of the Miller Specials entered by Harry Miller, the famous motor builder.

Ellingbee has been wintering in Memphis, Tenn., and is out every day piling up miles on the brand new car he is to drive. The car, a pet of the motor car builder who twice has built mounts which have taken the checkered flag at victory in Indianapolis races, is very fast.

Jimmy Rossi, an Italian pilot, has been dethroned as chauffeur for the Roof Special by Wally Butler, of Indianapolis, a former riding mechanic for Milton, Murphy and Hearne. This announcement has just been made by the entrants of the Roof Special.

A. E. Moss, the registered dentist of London, England, who forsook the white coat of the dental laboratory for the black smock of the racing garage, has been definitely announced as one of the drivers for the three Barber Warnock Specials entered in the drive.

Harlan Fengler, baby speed king, who was severely injured when his car hit a retaining wall during a practice lap, is expected to leave the hospital this week. It is not believed he will be able to drive although there is a car at the track for him.

BRING MUCH
WHEN SOLD
THIS WAY

Before buying real estate mortgage bonds, find out the value of the land security behind the bonds and what percentage of the mortgage the value of the land represents.

Very often real estate mortgage bonds are not properly secured. That is, the bond issue represents nearly the total value of the building and the ground—the normal market price. Conservative finance agrees that a mortgage bond issue should not be for more than two and one half times the value of the land on which the building is built. A large French financial institution Credit Foncier, will not lend but one-half value of the real estate in such cases.

The reason why such bonds, which represent the total normal market value of the building and ground, are dangerous, is simple. If the building, which is represented by the bonds, falls and is sold at auction it will not command anywhere near the normal market price and the bondholders will be left "holding the sack" when the bond payments are settled up from the proceeds of the auction sale.

RUSSIA'S ISOLATION MAKES FOR SOVIET STABILITY

Soviet Russia, under the new economic policy, is building two classes, whose existence is inconsistent with the extreme Communist doctrine. One is the peasant proprietor of agricultural lands and the other is the retail tradesman. All the Russian peasants now virtually own their land. Technically there are faults in their titles. They cannot sell their holdings, but they can leave them to heirs. And 86 per cent of the retail trade of Russia is once more in private hands. But the Soviet Government can always control the small tradesman—the retail dealer. He need never be numerous enough or powerful enough to offer effective resistance to the Communists. He will never constitute what we call in America "a big interest." The one thing the Soviet leaders have guarded themselves against is the development of "big interests." The natural resources are in Government hands. Manufacturing is conducted by state trusts. And the wholesale trade is almost a Government monopoly. No very big interest can develop out of retail trading or out of peasant farming conducted with small acreages.

And it will be a long time before the peasants will support any movement for the overthrow of the Soviet Government. While the expatriate whites still live and plot returns to power the peasants will support the revolution as the only sure way of keeping control of their lands. They may press for more modifications of the Communist policy. If Trotsky, for example, should come to grips with the old guard of communism, they might support him. But that is as far as they are likely to go in several years.

So bolshevism is likely to have plenty of time in which to try out its great experiment. Its remoteness from Europe, both in point of distance and social conditions, which I spoke of as assuring the western world the opportunity to watch the experiment without undue excitement, also protects Russia from the contagion of the western world. In the beginning European statesmen talked wisely of extending a sort of cordon sanitaire around Russia. There is naturally a kind of cordon sanitaire which isolates Russia in both directions. Thus Russia must make a big success economically before the revolution gains converts elsewhere. She must make a complete failure economically before the revolution is rejected. She can run along experimentally for years making a moderate success, with the revolution neither gaining ground elsewhere nor losing ground at home.

I have spoken of the difficulties which face the Soviet leaders and of the failure for the movement to produce impressive men to cope with them. The difficulties in Russia would be equally great for capitalism. I am not sure that capitalism would have accomplished more for Russia since the war than bolshevism has. It has not accomplished as much for Germany as bolshevism has for Russia, and Germany is the only other country with which outside capitalism has been at war. And if, with the death of Lenin and the defeat of Trotsky, Russia is left without remarkable men, so are the other countries of the western world without remarkable men.—Clinton W. Gilbert.

OHIO SAFELY DRY

Ohio, which has voted down light wines and beer twice since prohibition became the law of the land, is not ready to accept Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's prophecy, that the Eighteenth Amendment will be repealed in five years. But that the Volstead Act may be modified in that time, is held not beyond the possibilities by some Ohio editors.

Dr. Butler is "talking thru his hat," his "enthusiasm ran away with his sanity," are some of the phrases hurled at him by indignant Ohio editors, while one quotes Festus' charge against Paul, "Much learning doth make thee mad."

"Muzzle Dr. Butler," demands the Toledo Times. The Times disputes Dr. Butler's statement that if the Republican National Convention does not take a stand against existing prohibition conditions it is threatened with a loss of 11 states, normally Republican, including, of course, New York state. It says: "The people 'out yonder' are against a modification of the Volstead law except in the direction of making enforcement more certain."

The Libson Evening Journal, which questions Dr. Butler's sanity, declares: "Probably few other opponents of prohibition have had the temerity to hope at all for repeal. It is generally recognized that the obstacles are insuperable. The most that is hoped for is a liberalization of the restrictions imposed by the Volstead law."

Dr. Butler finds a partial sympathizer in the Wapakoneta Daily News. Here is its summary of the situation: "Not within five times five years will the American people repeal the amendment, not because it should not be repealed but because they will not open their eyes to the truth and facts concerning prohibition. The News' formula is this: 'If Dr. Butler and every other man and woman in the United States who honestly believe that prohibition under the Eighteenth Amendment is a farce, will insist that the farce be carried out to the letter of the law, then and then only will the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed.'"

Another sympathetic voice is raised by the Marietta Daily Times. The Times agrees that, "There is sure to be a heavy onslaught on the Volstead Act and state acts modeled after it, because of the extremely low percentage of alcohol now permitted. It is possible that the Volstead Act will be modified within the five years given by Dr. Butler. But the Eighteenth Amendment is a different matter."—Cleveland Press.

THE OLD CRY

"It's the old, old cry," said he,
"We resent each change we see,
And we fancy now we are older
And of youth we're all bereft,
That the finer things were lost
When from then to this we crossed;
That the past holds all of splendor
And there is no virtue left."

"Men in ages long ago
Saw their children overthrow
Every rule set down to guide them,
And they shook their heads and sighed
And they murmured, looking on;
"The old glory now is gone,
The old courage is deserted,
And the old faith thrown aside."

"But a fairer world we know
Than that world of long ago,
And the children of our children
In a fairer world shall dwell;
And in spite of all our fears,
Youth shall triumph through the years
And the glory of their courage
To their children they shall tell."

"We are older, you and I,
And we shake our heads and sigh
As our children break their fetters
And our rules of guidance flout;
But the old faith still remains,
There is good blood in their veins,
The old virtues are not failing
Nor is courage dying out."

The following simple luncheon or supper menu will be found satisfying on warm days: Some kind of fried cutlet, a fruit salad, wholewheat bread, jelly or jam, and a beverage. Housekeepers of today do not make as much work of deep-fat frying as our grandmothers did; instead of filling a large pot half full of fat, we now use a small saucepan containing one or two inches of melted fat and lower the cutlets into this, one at a time, in a perforated kitchen spoon. Try the following recipes:

Celery-Veal Cutlets: Put left-over cooked potatoes through a food chopper and measure. To one cupful, add one-half cup of finely-minced, raw celery and one cup of ground, cooked veal. Mix well together, wetting with one tablespoon of sweet milk and adding one beaten egg. Form into small triangles with the hands, dip each in raw egg, then in fine bread crumbs, and fry in deep fat which is hot enough to brown a cube of bread in a minute.

Onion-Liver-Pea Cutlets: Put soaked left-overs of liver through the food chopper and measure. To one cupful add one-half cup of cooked peas, one beaten egg, one tablespoon of minced raw onion and one tablespoon of dry bread crumbs. Mix well, shape in cutlet form, and fry as above described.

Chicken-Bacon Cutlets: Grind left-overs of cooked chicken (or use the canned boned variety) and measure. To each cupful add six slices of bacon previously fried crisp and then chopped very fine. Also add a pinch of salt, one tablespoon of bread crumbs, and one beaten egg. Form into cutlets, and after rolling in raw egg and crumbs, fry in deep, hot fat.

Potato-Egg Cutlets: Mash cooked white potatoes and measure. To each cupful add two hard-boiled eggs which you have chopped by hand in a wooden bowl. Season with salt and pepper to suit individual taste, and add a minced sprig of parsley, and moisten with two tablespoons of sweet milk. Shape into triangular cutlet form and roll in raw egg, in crumbs, and fry as above directed.

TO FALL BACK ON

No matter how well anything is made, there always comes a time when it shows wear.

And unless something is done at once to repair this wear, the thing itself has to fall back upon what reserves it has.

The great ocean liners have reserve engines. So do the long distance air machines, and so do the important engines in all the great plants of the world.

In the human body, how wonderfully other parts take up new work and perform new service when one important part gives away!

In the theater, someone must be ready to take the place of any player who might fall in his place. I was told recently that there was in every important theater company an understudy who knew all the parts, so that no emergency might arise whereby the performances would be interrupted.

Somewhat or other, there seems to be something to fall back on for every hopeful person.

In the hugging body there are stored fats that feed and keep the human machine alive for weeks after food has been denied.

The Great Creator throughout all nature seems to have safeguarded everything useful. The trees to give shade and protection from the hot sun. The sun to give life and warmth. The rain to afford a relief for the thirst of the ground. And so on through all the plans of nature.

No matter how badly we seem to be defeated at times, there is always something to fall back on.

And if everything seems to have gone, there still remains the faith that a man may have in himself to the very end of life—

That faith which is life!

PUBLIC LINKS TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD IN DAYTON

Dayton, May 24.—The first national golf event to be played in Dayton is scheduled for the week of June 23, when the national public links championship comes off at the Hills and Dales course.

The question of choosing a course for this national event rose last season and James D. Standish, Jr., a member of the executive board of the United States Golf Association visited Dayton upon the solicitation of the local golfers. His recommendation that the national event be held in Dayton received the support of that body in spite of the fact that this tournament was held in Ohio two years ago.

Dayton is the home of more than 6,000 men and women golfers and the committee appointed to handle this important event is chosen from this number. The chairman of these committees who are well known to State golf circles and are prominent business men of this city, are as follows: general chairman, William M. Brady; publicity, Larry Bloss; entertainment, George Klockson; finance, Howard Baichley, reception, Charles H. Simms, greens, Henry Adelberger; referee and caddyman, James Noble, golf professional, Community Club; trophy, R. T. Houk, Jr., and lockers, Oscar Pryor.

The whole week will be crammed full of entertainment for the visiting golfers. Leading hotels have made special rates to the golfers and the whole city is to be open to these guests. The out-of-townmen drawn to Dayton by the tournament will be banqueted on the first night of the week at the Hotel Miami by the Dayton Golf Association and this feast will be followed by dinner at the Old Barn Club, the Dayton Country Club, and Hills and Dales Club, with dancing during the early hours of the evening throughout the week. Among other attractions at the banquet at the Hotel Miami, Keith acts will furnish the entertainment. Boxing bouts at the McCabe Park will be the drawing card for the men of Tuesday night.

Trips through the plants of the National Cash Register Company and the Crawford, McGregor and Canby Co., where golf clubs are manufactured, will be conducted. A luncheon at the McGregor Company's club and a round of golf over the McGregor course will also be on the program for half the guests each day on the two qualifying days.

JOHN C. BROWN OF JAMESTOWN DIES EARLY SATURDAY

John C. Brown, aged 82, cashier of The Farmers' and Traders' Bank at Jamestown, and for more than fifty years connected with that institution, died at his home on East Washington Street, Jamestown at 6:10 o'clock, Saturday morning. His death followed an invalidism of eighteen months' duration, most of which time he had been confined to his home. During much of that period however he had been able to transact banking business at his home and had kept in touch with affairs at the bank. Previous to becoming ill he was at his desk in the bank every day.

Mr. Brown was regarded by Jamestown as probably its most prominent citizen, although he had never held public office, and had never sought leadership in any affairs other than those connected with the banking house that had for more than half a century progressed under him.

Born on a farm three and one-half miles west of Jamestown on the Jamestown and Xenia pike in 1842 he spent his youth there and as a young man entered the drygoods business in Jamestown. He became connected with The Farmers' and Traders' Bank as teller in 1872 and in 1877 was made cashier of the institution succeeding M. L. Syfers in that position after the latter's death. He was elected to the presidency of the bank about thirty years ago and at that time was succeeded as cashier by the late J. B. Christopher.

For six months during his more than fifty years connection with the Jamestown bank, Mr. Brown left its employ coming to Xenia as cashier of the Xenia National Bank about forty years ago. He soon returned to the Jamestown banking house.

Surviving Mr. Brown are his widow who was before marriage Miss Harriet McCarty of Xenia, and two brothers, Thomas Brown, of Coshocton, former postmaster of Xenia and Andrew Brown of Los Angeles. A niece of Mrs. Brown's, Miss Katherine Hayslip was reared by the Browns and has always made her home with them.

Mr. Brown was a member of the United Presbyterian Church.

Funeral plans have not been announced.

SUFFERS FRACTURED ARM IN ACCIDENT

Thrown from his horse when the animal became frightened, while he was riding it on his farm on the Stevenson Road, Friday afternoon, John Ray, well known farmer, suffered a compound fracture of the right forearm just above the wrist and was severely bruised and shocked.

The accident occurred about half a mile from the house in a field where Mr. Ray was planting corn. He was taken to his home by David McElroy and Dr. W. H. Finley was called.

DECLARATIONS WILL BE FILED BEFORE LAST DAY

Although no prospective candidates to come before the Republican Primary, August 12, have filed their declarations with the Board of Elections, Earl Short, clerk, is certain they will not wait until the last day.

A number of candidates, whose names will appear on the ballots August 12 for the Republican nominations for different offices, have formally declared themselves in the race, but have not completed the formality of filing their intentions with the board.

Politicians while perhaps not superstitious are given to influence by the vagaries of the signs. They endeavor to avoid all the bad omen signs when filing their respective hats into the political ring. These, although a superstition, have filed their papers, Mr. Short is certain they will not wait until the last filing day, because the last day for filing the papers, is Friday, June 13.

TEAM SCORES MADE PUBLIC IN XENIA

Scores made by the first aid teams of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company in the district tournament at Columbus recently when the construction team of this city won first prize, have been made public here.

The records show that the Xenia team made perfect scores in all three problems, finishing with a record of 100 per cent. The Middletown team also scored 100 per cent but was placed second because it finished second to Xenia in the matter of time taken in each event.

In the first event, the Xenia team finished the problem in four minutes and thirty seconds with a rating of 100. The local team finished the second problem in four minutes, three seconds and the third problem in seven minutes. The Middletown team, runner up in the events, finished the first problem in six minutes, fifty-five seconds, the second in five minutes, forty-five seconds and the third in nine minutes. The Columbus team finished third with an average of 99.13 per cent, falling down on the third problem.

Members of the Xenia team have been given Borglum medals and joint Red Cross and American Bell Telephone Company first aid certificates. The Borglum medals are the first ever awarded in Greene County. The cup won by the team is on display at Wagner's Jewelry Store.

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

SUZANNE ATWOOD, the young wife of a prominent business man, GEOFFREY ATWOOD, is faced by the fact that his secretary, LINDA VALE, is trying to come between them. Geoffrey refuses to explain various unusual circumstances which lead to that suspicion. An old beau of Suzanne's, LIEUTENANT DUNCAN HALE, tries to persuade her to leave Geoffrey, who is much older than she, get a divorce, and marry him. Geoffrey's nephew, DICK LEIGH, is taken sick with scarlet fever, and the house is quarantined. Suzanne goes to a hotel to stay, determined to leave Geoffrey, but he follows her and engages one suite for them both. They learn from Mrs. Vale that her daughter, LOLITA, a chorus girl, whom she had never acknowledged, has some time previously eloped with Dick, who has been infatuated with her.

XXXV—DUNCAN HALE'S INTERFERENCE.

Geoffrey's political activities took up much of his time; a city election in which he was much interested was impending, and his own candidacy for governor of the state was becoming an assured thing. He threw himself into his work the next few days with renewed zeal, and Suzanne rejoiced, knowing that it was because of her declaration to believe blindly in him and ask him no more questions about his relations with Linda Vale.

VIOLET DARE

Her curiosity was as sharp as ever; she could not govern that. Mrs. Vale gave no sign of being disturbed; evidently after the party at the club she had slipped back again into her old manner; she telephoned Suzanne several times to give her messages from Geoffrey, and Suzanne took them quite as if she enjoyed having her husband's suggestions and remarks relayed to her by another woman. It was a bitter struggle, but she conquered.

She went into Geoffrey's office late one afternoon, when they were to have tea with some old friends of his who were stopping over in the city for a few hours on their way to their country home. Geoff was busy, and she waited for him in the small outer office of his suite. There Mrs. Vale found her.

"Oh, I'm so glad to have a chat with you," she exclaimed, seating herself on the small divan beside Suzanne. "I have your check here, Suzanne—I don't suppose you need as much for the house now, since you're living at a hotel."

"Oh, yes, I need quite as much," replied Suzanne brightly, tucking the slips of paper into her gold mesh bag. "You see, Dick has two nurses, even though he's nearly well, and then, too, Lolita is there."

"The dear child!" sighed Linda Vale, her handkerchief to her eyes. Suzanne smiled. It seemed odd that Mrs. Vale should suddenly be so fond of the daughter she had left to shift for herself until she made a good marriage. "It's dreadful to have one's only daughter marry, and so young. I do hope Dick will be good to her."

"Oh, Dick's sure to be," Suzanne returned, trying not to emphasize the first word. "Thank you so much for having these checks ready promptly, Mrs. Vale."

"I try always to be prompt," replied Mrs. Vale, quite as if it had not been her habit to delay them.

MERGER EFFECTED Dayton, May 23.—Merger of the Market Savings Bank, Wayne Avenue, with the City Trust and Savings Bank, was effected Friday. Walter C. Davidson, president of the City Trust announced.

The Market Savings Bank will be operated a branch of the downtown banking house, which is already operating four branches. The Market Bank was 15 years old and T. H. Lienesch was its president.

ENGINEER SEEKS OFFICE Columbus, Ohio, May 24.—William A. Hogle, civil engineer, filed his declaration as a candidate for State Senator from the Tenth District with Secretary of State Thad Brown.

MODISH MITZI—She Helps Adelaide Buy A Trousseau

BY JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is lending a helping hand and eye to Adelaide's purchases. This dress, they both decide, is one no troussseau should be without. It is beige crepe trimmed with gold colored crepe and gold embroidery. The neckline is extremely new—being slightly fitted to the figure.

For sports wear nothing could be smarter than this. It is flannel—a large and effective plaid combined with plain material. The skirt is pleated and fastened to a camisole. The jacket blouse is loose and comfortable with a wide flaring collar to give it extra dash.

Fashion prefers angles to curves this season, and Adelaide chooses wisely when she buys this black satin frock. Its stiff straight panels—one on the blouse, two on the skirt—are of black chiffon embroidered in gold. Adelaide, being blonde, wears black charmingly.

A bouffant dance frock is a bit of a departure for Adelaide, but everyone is wearing bouffant frocks now. So she chooses this one of chiffon and lace. The sleeves, such as they are—are most new. All evening gowns are practically or entirely sleeveless.
